Hello everyone!

I hope you are working hard and managing to spend time outside where possible! It has been a strange week this week not seeing you all every day but I hope you are all getting on well! I started the week with a day in school where I was very fortunate to see a number of you! We were very lucky to be able to plant some runner beans and so our classroom is now full of budding new plants (or so I hope!). Mrs Tomkys has decided to keep our classroom as the only UKS2 classroom in use - I hope that the other teachers and children remember to keep it as tidy as we do!

If you have managed to stick to the revision timetable this week, well done! The reading comprehension is one of my favourites, not only because it shares an extract from one of my favourite stories of all time, but also because it is all about animals - which I love. The mystery writing activity should have given you all something exciting to write about and I can't wait to hear those stories! I have been watching you all on TTRS and am sending a particular 'Well done!' shout out to Caleb, Miko and Marianne who have been active since we haven't been in school - I hope that more of you will be on there in the coming days! Your Maths revision books have seen you covering our favourite topic this week - long division! I hope you're all feeling super confident with that now!

Remember, if any of the work you have been doing has been super tricky or you have got stuck at any point, ask your parents to email the office and they will forward them on to me! Most importantly...DO NOT WORRY and ALWAYS DO YOUR BEST!

In other news, I was busy working in my garden last weekend, which now means that I am doing a lot of my reading outside (picture of my garden below)! I hope you have been able to carry on 'Journey to the River Sea' and if not, are enjoying the books we selected from the library last week! If you're finding your books tricky to get in to, remember that there is a reading list in your packs or you can always go on to <https://www.worldofdavidwalliams.com/> and listen to one of the World's Worst Children stories read by David Walliams at 11am each day.

Keep up all your hard work next week! I'm missing you all lots but look forward to hearing all about the hard work you're doing while you're at home with your families.

Best wishes, Mrs Haines
